(1) The summary risk indicator (SRI) is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the market or because we are not able to pay you. It ranges from 1 (low risk) to 7 (high risk). This indicator is not constant and will change according to the fund's risk profile. The lowest category does not mean risk-free. MONTHLY MANAGEMENT COMMENT

Industrials, information technology, and consumer staples contributed most during the month on a sector basis, relative to the benchmark. Within industrials, our out-of-benchmark allocations to Expeditors International and Heico contributed most to relative results. Shares of Expeditors International rose over the period after the company reported revenue for the fourth quarter that beat estimates. The company also announced a management change as Jeffrey S. Musser will be stepping down as president and CEO on April 1, and current President of Global Geographies Daniel R. Wall is set to take over. Shares of Heico rose over the period after the company reported positive first quarter EPS and sales that beat estimates, boosted by organic sales growth and recent acquisitions. Within information technology, not holding Pure Storage and Bill Holdings contributed most to relative results. Within consumer staples, our overweight to Post Holdings and out-of-benchmark allocation to Brown-Forman contributed most to relative results. Shares of Post Holdings rose over the period after the company reported fiscal first quarter EPS above estimates and sales in line with estimates. Post also raised the lower end of its annual profit forecast. Shares of Brown-Forman rose modestly over the period ahead of the company's fiscal third quarter earnings release scheduled for March 5. Real estate, materials, and health care detracted most from relative results during the month. Within real estate, not holding WP Carey and American Homes 4 Rent detracted most from relative results. Within materials, our out-of-benchmark allocations to FMC and Celanese detracted most from relative results. Shares of FMC, a US-based chemical manufacturer, fell after the company reported fourth-quarter earnings. Revenues fell short of expectations, with regional struggles in North and Latin America driving underperformance, while Asia, however, beat expectations. Full-year 2025 earnings guidance came in below midpoints from the year-ago quarter as well as below consensus estimates. Shares of Celanese declined over the period after reporting a fourth quarter loss due to persistent destocking trends in the automotive and industrial market. Management said it sees "persistently weak global demand" in end markets including paint and coatings. The company also announced EPS guidance for the full year that missed expectations. Within health care, our overweight allocation to Acadia Healthcare and out-of-benchmark allocation to Align Technology detracted most from relative results. Shares of Acadia Healthcare declined over the period after the company announced revenue and adjusted Ebitda forecast for the year that missed estimates. The company also announced fourth quarter results that missed expectations which the firm believes were driven by higher-than-expected start-up losses. Shares of Align Technology declined over the period after the company reported fourth quarter earnings that missed estimates. The company announced first quarter guidance for net revenue that missed estimates. Align also suffered a setback in its bid to settle antitrust claims that the company colluded to raise prices of its Invisalign products.
