

GSQuartix Modified Strategy on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return Portfolio

CLASS R2 (GBP UNHEDGED)

September 2024

Strategy Description and Objective

The Portfolio's investment objective is to replicate the performance of the Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return which seeks to outperform the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return, while keeping the same weight for each commodity as of the yearly rebalancing. The Portfolio seeks to achieve its objective by (i) entering into a swap agreement for participation in the Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return and (ii)(a) entering into a reverse repurchase agreement with a financial institution or (b) purchasing an asset portfolio of US Government Treasury Bills.

The Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return seeks to outperform the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return by making certain adjustments to the methodology for calculating that index, in particular, the procedure by which certain of the constituent futures contracts are rolled forward, in order to apply certain dynamic, timing and seasonal rolling rules. These adjustments are intended to enhance the performance of the strategy over that of the index, but there can be no assurance that these adjustments will have the desired effect and it is possible that these adjustments could actually result in the strategy underperforming the index.

The index, the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return, is designed to provide investors with a diversified benchmark for the commodity markets and is currently composed of futures contracts on 24 physical commodities. The index, and therefore the strategy, is not exposed to each constituent commodity contract equally.

Monthly Commentary

The BCOMTR Index was up +4.86% in September.

The Energy Sector The Energy Complex finished flat on the month (BCOMEN Index, +0.06%), driven mainly by Natural Gas (BCOMNG Index, +17.01%) and offset by the oil complex. On the gas side, the rally was driven by hotter-than-usual weather in parts of the US increasing gas demand for power generation. This rally was largely concentrated in the final week of the month as the market reassessed late season congestion risk and salt overflow worries. Meanwhile, Crude Oil saw significant weakness (BCOMCO Index, -6.01%, BCOMCL Index, -6.17%) despite growing escalation risks as the market increasingly priced in Cal25 surpluses, particularly following the APPEC conference where sentiment was extremely bearish. This was compounded as Libyan factions reached an agreement to appoint a new central bank governor and resume crude oil production/exports. Additionally, an article in the Financial Times which stated Saudi Arabia would be abandoning their $100/bbl target to regain market spooked the market on fears of Saudi barrels flooding supply. Meanwhile, refined products largely tracked the crude sell off with Gasoil (BCOMGO Index, -5.58%), Heating Oil (BCOMHO Index, -6.07%), and RBOB (BCOMRB Index, -5.82%) all down. Notwithstanding this, product cracks did find some small pockets of support vs crude oil due to refinery run cuts.

The Precious Metals Sector Metals had a strong performance this month, across both precious and base. In Precious (BCOMPR Index, +5.87%), Gold had another month of gains as it continued to break new highs (BCOMGC Index, +5.21%). It has been the best performing precious metal year-to-date, with US rates cuts being realised and spurring on XAU/USD to new highs. While Central Bank buying remains difficult to see, we can see ETF holdings ticked up through September, which coincided with a fall 2-year US rates. GS increased year-end forecast, as our Research Team believe that the gold market doesn't fully price in the rates boost to Western ETF holdings backed by physical gold yet, and see there may be further upside. Silver (BCOMSI Index, +7.94%) outperformed gold in the month, following a sell-off during summer despite gold's consistent rally. While managed positioning in gold remains at post-covid highs, Silver positioning saw a large increase make local highs.

The Industrial Metals Sector Industrial Metals (BCOMIN Index, +6.38%) has returned to strength with Copper leading the complex higher (BCOMHG Index, +8.11%), followed closely by Zinc (BCOMZS Index, +6.54%). Copper was initially driven higher by strong draws to visible onshore inventories, which went against the narrative of constantly building inventories onshore and a soft physical market. The complex then broke up on headlines of further stimulus onshore, with SHCOMP experiencing the largest weekly rally in a decade following the PBOC chief Pan Gongsheng vowed to "go all out" to implement more support if needed. This resulted in increased CMX Copper buying, which led to the close-dated CMX/LME arb starting to blow out again, similar to price action seen earlier in the year. Aluminium (BCOMAL Index, +6.39%) performed similarly strongly, but had a slight under-performance due to consistent producer selling as we rally. Nickel failed to catch the same bid, due to a less convincing fundamental story (BCOMNI Index, +3.99%), while Lead failed to fully recover from a sharp systematic sell-off early in the month which held back month-on-month returns (BCOMPBI Index, +1.37%).

The Agricultural Sector The Agricultural complex saw a strong rally in September (BCOMAG Index, +7.19%), with adverse weather being the main driver of prices across the complex. In Coffee (BCOMKC Index, +10.74%), both Brazil and Vietnam's dry weather has strained production and led to fears of shortages, which has supported prices. Similarly, Sugar (BCOMSB Index, +13.91%) saw a bounce due to weather in Brazil providing bullish signals on reduced supply and resulting in net spec positioning to turn the most bullish it has been year-to-date Corn (BCOMCN Index, +5.92%), the USDA expects Ukraine corn production to fall by 16%, with Russian production expected to decline by a quarter. Expected dry weather in South America added to these supply side concerns, providing bullish signals to the market. Soybean (BCOMSY Index, +5.70%), Soybean Meal (BCOMSM Index, +9.14%) and Soybean Oil (BCOMBO Index, +3.09%) all rose on the tailwind of a short covering. Soybean prices have been rising due to the warm and dry weather in the Midwest and rising demand in the crop's top importer – China. On Wheat (BCOMKW Index, +3.27%, BCOMWH Index, +5.89%), prices initially fell on weaker than expected US exports, however this decline was limited as weather conditions continue to threaten supply and prices. Australian Wheat production was under pressure from dry conditions in the west and extreme frost in southern regions, which further contributed to the bounce in price.

The Livestock Sector Livestock saw positive performance during the month (BCOMLI Index, +1.51%). Live Cattle provided positive returns (BCOMLC Index, +3.28%) which were largely offset by Lean Hogs, which fell slightly through the month (BCOMLH Index, -1.66%). This left livestock close to flat, but following the commodity complex higher, as the market struggled for directional conviction.

The Collateral Return contributed 0.44% for the month of September.

The Enhanced Strategy underperformed the benchmark by -0.48% in September. The main source of underperformance was Natural Gas (-0.58%) while the main source of outperformance was Lean Hogs (+0.11%). The Enhanced strategy does a seasonal roll on Natural Gas and was invested further out on the curve in the Jan25 contract while the benchmark was invested at the front of the curve in the Nov24 contract. Hence, the Enhanced strategy benefited less than the benchmark from the rally in Natural Gas prices over the month, amid hotter-than-usual temperatures in parts of the US and a slowdown in gas production growth in the first half of the month.

Risk Disclosures

Conflict of interests: Goldman Sachs performs several roles in connection with the Portfolio. Although Goldman Sachs will perform its obligations in good faith and a commercially reasonable manner, Goldman Sachs may face conflicts between those roles and its own interests.

Counterparty risk: The ability of the Portfolio to meet its obligations to investors will depend on the receipt by it of payments owed to the Portfolio by Goldman Sachs International under the Swap Agreement and the Reverse Repurchase Agreement. As a result, the Portfolio will be exposed to the creditworthiness of Goldman Sachs International.

Not principal protected: The Shares in the Portfolio are not principal protected and hence investors can potentially lose the full notional of investment.

No assurance of source of value: Although the Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return (the "Underlyer Strategy") is designed to capture certain fundamental commodity relationships, the relationships may or may not exist.

No active management: There will be no active management of the Underlyer Strategy so as to enhance returns beyond those embedded in the modifications to the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return (the "Benchmark Index").

Potentially different returns from those of the Benchmark Index: Although the Underlyer Strategy includes the same futures contracts that comprise the Benchmark Index, its value and returns will likely differ from those of the Benchmark Index.

No assurance of "absolute" returns: There can be no assurance that the Underlyer Strategy to which the Portfolio is linked will actually be successful at producing consistently positive returns, nor does Goldman Sachs make any representation or warranty, express or implied, that the Underlyer Strategy will do so in the future.

Limit prices could impact liquidity in the Underlyer Strategy: The commodity markets can be subject to temporary distortions due to regulations that limit the amount of fluctuation in futures contract prices which may occur during a single trading day. Limit prices may have the effect of precluding trading in a particular contract or forcing liquidation of contracts underlying the Underlyer Strategy at disadvantageous times or prices. These circumstances could prevent an investor from redeeming their Shares in the Portfolio in full on a given day which could in turn adversely affect the return on Shares in the Portfolio for potential or existing investors.

Unpredictable changes in commodity contracts prices: Prices of commodity futures contracts and other commodity contracts included in the Underlyer Strategy are affected by a variety of factors which are unpredictable and beyond the control of Goldman Sachs and the Investment Manager.

Higher future prices of commodities included in the Underlyer Strategy relative to their current prices may adversely affect the value of the Shares in the Portfolio: The Underlyer Strategy replicates an actual investment in commodity contracts and therefore is affected by the need to "roll" the commodity contracts underlying the Underlyer Strategy due to commodity contracts having a predetermined expiration date on which trading in the contract ceases. "Rolling" (that is selling contracts that are nearing expiration before they expire and buying contracts that have an expiration date further in the future), while allowing an investor to maintain an investment position in the commodities underlying the Underlyer Strategy without receiving physical delivery of commodities or making or receiving a cash settlement, can potentially have a large impact on the level of the Underlyer Strategy. In particular, if the price of the contracts being sold is higher than that of the contracts being purchased (a situation known as "contango") and spot prices remain unchanged, this could result in negative performance of the Underlyer Strategy which could in turn affect the value of the Shares in the Portfolio.

No entitlement to the underlying commodity: Investing in the Portfolio will not make a holder entitled to physical delivery of any of the commodities included in the Underlyer Strategy or any contracts with respect thereto."
